

PRESIDENT MAY COME OCT. 16

Telegram Inviting Him to Speak Here Sent Through
Secretary A. A. Jones.

At a meeting of the board of control Thursday afternoon at the chamber of commerce, it was indicated that permanent dates would be set within the next few days for the International Soil Products exposition, the International Dry Farming congress and the ceremonies attending the dedication of Elephant Butte dam.

At the close of the meeting a telegram asking president Wilson to deliver an address at the opening of the exposition on October 16, at El Paso in addition to the one at Elephant Butte dam. The telegram sent to the president through A. A. Jones, first assistant secretary of the department of the interior.

The setting of permanent dates now depends on the receipt of a reply from the telegram which was framed Thursday afternoon. The communication asks Mr. Jones to communicate with him if he can without any embarrassment with the president, and to arrange for the presence of both secretary Lane and the president on October 16 or later.

swing, he took another—and another. By the time he actually walked up it he had contracted golfitis in a malignant form.

In due course, one or two other Yonkersites joined the trio. When springtime came there were nearly 20 golfers in Yonkers. Lockhart had brought over only a few clubs. Of course, they became "king property" but the supply of clubs was too small. So the golfers sent to Europe for clubs and, while waiting, some of them designed clubs of their own.

"And what fearful looking objects they were!" exclaims a historian. In 1888 the first real golf links in America were laid out. The new course, a six hole, was laid in Yonkers, on the banks of the Hudson. The first matches were played over it on November 18, 1888—and the American golf games date officially from that time. No club house was built at first. An apple tree, with peculiar and low hanging branches, served for "lockers."

The organization was nicknamed "The Apple Tree Gang" but officially was called the St. Andrews Golf Club, which now is credited with being the first real golf club in the United States.

PLAN MOTORCYCLE RACE FROM HERMOSILLO TO PHOENIX, FAIR
Phoenix, Ariz., June 2.—Energetic support for the proposed motorcycle race between Hermosillo and Phoenix, planned for next November, has been promised by Jose Delgado, Carranza consul at Nogales.
